

Summit takes a fresh look at New Zealand

Staff Reporter

CHENNAI: The Loyola Institute of Business Administration, in association with India New Zealand Friendship Association (INZFA), organised a trade event, Business Summit 2015, on Monday.

The first edition explored the theme of 'Exploring Hands of Friendship across Oceans', a press release said.

The event saw eminent speakers from various fields from around the globe sharing their expertise, initiating dialogue and facilitating business relations between the two countries. The summit aims to promote economic development and collaborative partnership between the countries, and provide insight into international business relations, the release said.

It will also serve as a platform for networking with key stakeholders and personalities from across industries, such as IT, food processing, dairy, health, culture, arts,

The first edition of Business Summit 2015 was organised by LIBA, along with India New Zealand Friendship Association sports, tourism, film and others, the release added.

The Prince of Arcot Nawab Mohammed Abdul Ali said there was excellent potential for the talented communities in both countries to connect more intensively, at all levels. Anand Satyanand, chairman, Commonwealth Foundation; J.K. Dadoo, joint secretary and DGAD, Ministry of Commerce and Industry; Grahame Morton, New Zealand High Commissioner to India; and Paramjeet Parmar, Member of Parliament, New Zealand, were among the dignitaries who participated, the release said.