SUSTAINABLE BUSINESS PRACTICES FOR A BETTER TOMORROW

8TH February 2019 at Hotel The Residency Towers, Chennai

ABOUT LIBA

Loyola Institute of Business Administration (LIBA) is a premier B-school, established in 1979 within the premises of Loyola College. LIBA is managed by Jesuits well known for their outstanding contribution to higher education. The raison d'être for Jesuits to get involved in business education is to form competent and committed leaders who are ethical, principle-centred, socially responsible with a global perspective and entrepreneurial spirit.

LIBA stands for excellence and ethics which are the hallmarks of Jesuit business education and all its programs and activities embody these two elements. LIBA earnestly strives to inculcate in the students the values of excellence, justice, honesty and service to the society.

LIBA focuses on the 'holistic formation' of students in all quotients, viz., intellectual, social, emotional and spiritual. The Institution works with an undeterred zeal to offer its students the best of the education, blending classroom and experiential learning.

LIBA offers primarily a two-year full-time PGDM course, approved by AICTE and recognized by AIU. It also offers other programs: Part-time PGDM (AICTE approved), Ph.D. (affiliated to University of Madras) and one-year executive diploma programmes. Management Development Centre offers various customised programmes (short-term and long-term) with a focus on skill development.

ABOUT BEACON

Loyola Institute of Business Administration (LIBA) has been organizing various programs and activities to promote business ethics and good corporate governance among its stakeholders, particularly the students.

One such program is the annual Business Ethics Conference (BEACON) which we have been organizing since 2007. BEACON 2018- 19 held on February 8, 2019 (Friday) at Hotel The Residency Towers, Chennai on the Theme - Sustainable Business Practices For A Better Tomorrow.

Concept Note

About BEACON 2018 - 19

Sustainability (Brundtland Commission, 1987) simply means, “meeting our own needs without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs”. Sustainability is not just environmentalism, as many commonly perceive it to be. Embedded in most perspectives on sustainability are also concerns for social equity and economic development.

Sustainability thus is a holistic approach that considers ecological, social and economic dimensions, recognizing that all must be considered together to find lasting prosperity. While the concept of sustainability is a relatively new idea, the movement as a whole has roots in social justice, conservationism, internationalism and other past movements with rich histories.

However, the motivations behind sustainability are often complex, personal and diverse. It is unrealistic to create a list of reasons why so many individuals, groups and communities are working towards this goal. Nevertheless, for most people, sustainability comes down to the understanding that it is the holistic, societal and cumulative efforts taken towards the “kind of future we are leaving for the next generation”.

Since the later part of the 20th century, business community has played quite a significant role in bringing the concept of sustainability to the level of prominence and stature it currently enjoys. For over three decades the business world is witness to the fact that when organisations, whether large or small, begin to practice sustainability, it will have a significant impact not only on the environment but also on the society and the economy as a whole in the long-run. Though many still see it a “wasteful expense”, a few proactive organisations have successfully implemented several models of sustainability and many of them are already beginning to reap the benefits, which are clearly being reflected in their bottom-line in terms of cost efficiencies and brand value.

LIBA proposes to highlight this context in its 2018-19 edition of BEACON - the Annual Ethics Conference with the theme, Sustainable Business Practices for a Better Tomorrow, wherein the budding managers of LIBA will get an opportunity to gain knowledge about the Sustainable Business Practices from industry leaders and also understand how it influences the bottom-line.

Mr. Jochen Tewes,

Founder, Inter-Mission Industrial Development Association

Mr. Jochen Tewes was born in 1942 in the east of Germany at the end of WW2. When Germany lost the war; his mother, sister and he became refugees along with 14 Million other Germans who had been forced to leave the east. They lived in refugee barracks for 7 years in Southern Germany and then moved to Lünen in the Ruhr District, Western Germany where he did his high school and engineering studies.

He had his first employment in Hannover, Northern Germany and worked as an engineer for 5 years in Hannover, invented 3 patents, and worked as a volunteer in Inter-Mission in his free time.

His first visit to India was in 1970 to see the small beginnings of Inter-Mission children homes. His second visit in 1972 to Bombay was to set up an engineering plant, when he felt the call to rehabilitate orphans and the poor through vocational training.

He travelled from Germany to India in a Volkswagen in 1973, established Inter-Mission Industrial Development Association in 1974 and married Johshy from KGF, Karnataka. In the same year he started the first of a series of industrial schools.

He began Micro Enterprise Development (MED) in 1996 within the organization. This wing has become an NBFC with 70,000 women enrolled today as clients in self-help groups.

In 2002 with mainly young girls from the clients of the MED groups, the first Community College was established. Today six Community Colleges are running, and in all centers around 1000 students graduate annually. Mr.Jochen Tewes and his staff trained more than 9000 trainees till now. Emphasis in all centers is laid on training and job-oriented education with teachings on life coping skills being an integral part of it.

The short form of the organization is "IID" that also carries the meaning of the values of the organization: "Integrity, Inspiration, Dedication"
